The late conflagration consumed my own, together with the Stock of Books (as it were) of the Company of Stationers, London: since that lamentable disaster, next my own loss; this doth trouble me, that when any of those few Ingenious Persons who desire books inquire after them, they are often answered by such as have them not, That they are all burnt, which discourageth any further enquiry, not only to the learned, but even of Country Chapmen, wherefore to let all men know notwithstanding the late dreadful Calamity, that there are Books yet to be had, And for the conveniency of the Ingenious Buyers, I publish this ensuing Catalogue.

For the Litteral faults of the Printer to Book-Buyers, I need not make any Apology, but for my self, that I did only name the Books, and not more largely deliver their several Titles and Subjects, that would have swell'd the Catalogue: To supply which if any that desire to be acquainted with the particulers, upon repairing or sending to me, may have full satisfaction from the Books themselves, if they send before they are sold.

From my Shop in Gresham-Colledge, next the Stairs, or Warehouse in Moore-Fields against the Cardinals-Cap.

About 200 Manuscripts, english and latine

The Publisher to the Reader.

IT is to be understood that this Catalogue is not so compleat, as to contain all the books I have, since many have come to my hand since it was printing, and more do daily, as I can hear of them: (being my request likewise, that all such as have any parcels they are willing to part with, would let me know their mindes. and I shall be ready to deal for them.) As for school-books and priviledge, together with stitcht books; I held it needless to insert them, judging that any ingenious person will conceive me furnished with such, sutable to the rest of my stock.

Moreover, I desire all persons concerned to take notice, that I make and sell the best Ink for Records, &c. which hath for many years been so approved. But since my removal by the late fire, several persons have mistaken my Shop, and gone to some neigbour pretender; to their great disappointment, and my damage.
